UNESCO

February 2015
5th & 6th

Forum organized by the World committee for lifelong learning (CMA), the UNESCO Institute for lifelong learning (UIL), and International Council for Adult Education (ICAE).

This great idea, a condition for equity, peace and progress, is consensual. However, reality is far from ideal. Where do the gaps come from? Which are the brakes and the success factors; which are the preconditions? Where are the key levers? Who can do what for whom? Which are the great roads for exchanging experiences and reflections in order to invigorate our actions towards a shared objective, in the joyful union of our complementarities?

We have chosen four that will result in four major roundtables:

- 1. Ensuring access and achievement conditions for all, to basic knowledge from early childhood until the end of life.
- 2. Recognizing and developing the role of enterprises in lifelong learning
- 3. Promoting health throughout the lifespan.
- 4. Creating knowledge from multiculturalism

INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP N°1 Coordination & facilitation : Françoise DAX-BOYER

Improve conditions to access basic knowledge for all, from early childhood to the end of life

- 1) The widening gap of inequality: what can be done to improve literacy?
How can women and girls gain access to learning and education?
 - 2) Digital progress and limitations in lifelong learning development
 - 3) What policies and innovations can facilitate this access?
 - 4) Art, mediation tool for lifelong learning

INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP N°2 Coordination & Facilitation: Marlena BOUCHE

Acting, educating & training for sustainable health

- 1) Life learning: How Education for all is to build up self-responsibility to control physical, spiritual and cultural well-being? Is School ready to motivate pupils and provide a quality skills-based health education so as children grow up in good health? What lessons learnt today from global and specific health-related learning/teaching methods?
 - 2) Sexuality education: challenges and successful methods. The adults feel uncomfortable discussing their sexuality with children; the teachers are often not in the position to share the adolescent's interests. The young people have often nobody to ask intimate questions. Is the school a real good place to discuss about such personal issues? What are the successful approaches to sexuality education around the world?
 - 3) Girl's education and health literacy: a definite emergency. Why? What should we do? How can cross-cultural comparisons empower and bring us up?

February 5th, 2015 in the evening
Happening at the "Musée d'Orsay"

9h00 to 12h30

INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP N°3 Coordination & Facilitation: Evelyn DERET & Martine SOUWEINE

Recognizing and developing the role of Businesses in lifelong learning

- 1) Is the company really a place for developing lifelong learning? How can it be handled? In what form?
- 2) Why do companies take on the challenge of lifelong learning? What are the results? What are the stakes?
- 3) What are the prospects? How to recognize and develop this training? Why and what are the benefits? How can they be correctly applied?

INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP N°4 Coordination & Facilitation: Farida TEMIMI

*Spotting and encouraging intercultural skills*1) Weaving and Interweaving:

Taking Inter-cultural "otherness" in consideration of the reality of our multicultural and inter-dependent societies, how do some cities or countries have a wealth of diversity and work to build intercultural skills and a "better living together"? How mobility (in its different forms) promotes the acquisition of formal and informal intercultural skills?

2) Intercultural aspects and learning

Are intercultural skills closely related to education and experience: How do we learn intercultural skills? Does a teaching method exist? Can we be trained on intercultural skills?

3) Tradition and the modern world : the intercultural and intergenerational transition:

Multiple heritage, knowledge and experience are carriers of wealth that transcend borders and ages. What heritage to transfer: language, communication, memory, perception and emotions? How to recognize and value informal learning?
